Army Cuts Ready

Manpower Drop Outlined By Wilson

WASHINGTON (INS) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said Wednesday night that budget proposals to be placed before the new Congress will call for a further reduction in Army strength.

The secretary also said that the U.S. Marines "ultimately" will be brought home from Korea.

Wilson, returning to Washington from a trip to New Orleans, La, was asked about reports that Army strength will be reduced by another 100,000 men.

Without giving specific figures, Wilson pointed out that he has proposed an expansion of the reserve forces in combination with a four year extension in the draft. Timing

He said: "A sound reserve program should be that ultimately you could have less men in the standing forces. But the timing is important-you can't go from one thing to another overnight."

Asked if the armed forces strength to be proposed to the new Congress will be less than the 3,-047,000 approved at the last session, Wilson said the recommended strength will be "something less." He said the cuts will be "principally in the Army, because the Army will benefit from the reserve program more than any other service."

Wilson made clear that there is no completed plan for withdrawing the First Marine Division from Korea, but said: "Certainly, they ultimately be brought should home.'

Additional Cut

brought back to the U S .- that they three an hour. will not be stationed in Japan, as in the case of some Army divisions that have been withdrawn from Korea.

The new reduction in the armed forces would be in addition to a cut of about 300,000 men which is to be made by June 30, 1955.

The new reduction will be proposed when the Congress meets next month, but if approved, would be carried out during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

Wilson said the revised strength figures will be ready shortly. He said he may have them in time for a conference he will hold at 2 p.m. CST Friday.

Strictly In Character

A friend who for years has kept closely in touch with the undercurrents in rural Nebraska dropped in Wednesday to report great deal of confusion in the thinking now shaping itself out on Nebraska farms.

Obviously if a vote means anything, a majority of Nebraska farmers and a majority of farmers in neighboring states did not hold the old farm program, particularly its provisions based on price supports at 90 per cent of parity, in high esteem. Pointing to the votes in these states so heavily interested in farming and farm income, Secretary Benson could say that the farmer supported him and his program of elastic price supports in November's election. It is here in this area where Republican candidates fared best at the hands of the farmers. They did not like the drastic cuts imposed upon acreages devoted to certain crops, particularly wheat. They were equally severe in their criticism of cross-compliance. But they were willing to string along in the belief that some of the more rigid provisions of the Benson program never would be put into effect That is strictly in character. A patient man, the Nebraska farmer goes along until he can continue no

There must be a story behind the story of Secretary Benson's decision to abandon an earlier ruling which sought' to enforce crosscompliance to the exact letter of the law. Secretary Benson, possibly a smarter political operator than the public the eight he was, has lost no time in seeking to set aside the more restrictive unpopular provisions of farm legislation enacted under his leadership. The farmer will rejoice over this, but in the long pull it in no way settles the farm program. Its basic headache involves either a broadened market for farm commodities in other parts of the world reputed to be hungry, or some system which would lift farm commodity prices to the highest level We may talk a great deal about our expanding market for farm commodities, but nothing will come from it until we can make up our minds to accept goods and commodities in exchange with other parts of the world. We simply do not like to accept the goods and services of other countries We desire to sell to others, but we do not want to buy from them. We want to protect our own market while dumping millions of dollars worth of goods

Confusion will remain until we make up our minds in which direction we desire to proceed.

A Report To The Board

The Lincoln Board of Education this week made public a report it received from Supt. Steven N. Watkins making a high-spot comparison of education factors playing over the period from 1932 to 1954.

In the 22 years the Lincoln enrollment in the elementary division-that is, from the first through the sixth grade—has increased from 8,474 to 9,364—almost 1,000 pupils. And although the city has added but 10 classrooms to its 1932 total of 359, it has done a notable job of distributing its children toward optimmum numbers per room Twenty-two years ago 70.7 per cent of Lincoln's elementary children were in classrooms of 35 to 44 pupils. Today 95.7 per cent of the children are in classrooms accommodating 20 to 34.

This reflects good management and calls to

Of Men And Things By J. E. LAWRENCE

We know of no good reason why Nebraska

short-term senator, Mrs. Hazel Abel, should step aside in order to give Senator-elect Carl Curtis a few days' edge in seniority ranking over Republican colleagues, who along with Mr. Curtis have been chosen to serve in the 84th Congress. Mr. Curtis, true, makes a lot of seniority in connection with committee assignments. But in the brief time allotted her as a short-term senator. Mrs. Abel, it would appear, has done a better job representing the people of Nebraska than some of the men who speak and vote for this state, including Mr. Curtis.

Fact is, Mrs. Abel has done a pretty good job for the people of Nebraska. We have no idea how Carl Curtis finally would have voted on the McCarthy condemnation resolution. Mrs. Abel supported it, and in supporting it demonstrated that she has a mind of her own. In the 55 days in office, Mrs. Abel has compiled quite a record, capped, of course, by her brave vote in the McCarthy controversy. In its section dealing with national affairs, News-Week has this to say with reference to the lady from Nebraska: "Most people in Nebraska last August thought the whole thing seemed a little silly. After all, it looked like such an empty honor-electing somebody to fill a two-month unexpired term in the United States Senate at a time when the Senate wasn't even supposed to meet. Yet 14 men and one woman made a full-scale race of it, and the woman won-a plump, amiable 68-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Hazel Abel, who had cruised the state in an air-conditioned Cadillac and beat her closest competitor by 20,000 votes, and then went on to trim the Democrat in a run-off election by more than 60,000."

The point is, Mrs. Abel took what most people considered an empty, meaningless job and actually made something of significance out of it by that vote on McCarthy. We can brush iside the 3,000 government documents which Newsweek said she mailed out to the home folks-maps, cookbooks, and farm year books Nebraska schools, libraries and farm organiantions - as incidental to her energetic acceptance of the responsibilities of the post.

A onetime schoolteacher, Girl Scout leader, successful business woman, former treasurer of the Nebraska League of Women Voters, and widow of a millionaire contractor, Mrs. Abel, the politician, got tagged with a nickname: 'Hurricane Hazel.' Newsweek continues. "Last week she was proving that Sort of Guinea

she had really earned it . . . Few if any senators have Pig' had a busier two months

. . . was sworn in the day the McCarthy censure proceedings began. She was the only senator who had heard each of the 930,000 words of the debate. She finally voted against McCarthy . . . attended 39 social or political functions, including receptions. luncheons, teas, cocktail parties, briefings on defense and foreign aid, and the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia . . . lunched twice with Mrs. Eisenhower, once with Vice President Nixon and conferred with President Eisenhower at the White House. . . . This week at her own expense she will make an inspection tour of defense installations and the foreign aid program in Europe. 'And I'm not going to look at art galleries," she added. Looking back at the whole experience, Sen. Abel said: 'To me it was more than a short term in the Senate. I wanted Nebraska voters to express their approval of a woman in government. I was a sort of guinea pig."

The least to be said is that in the brief time allotted by the short term, Mrs. Abel really got around. There have been a lot of men serve in the Senate who have gone far fewer places and seen far less of the atmosphere of the national capital. Mr. Curtis undoubtedly would be happy to pick up a brief seniority when it came to committee assignments, but we doubt that he could have kept pace with Mrs. Abel in her found of busy days in Washington. To have undertaken it, we fear, would have left him mopjing his brow, a little short of breath.

recognition that school administration has kept pace with the years.

But there are other interesting facets in the 22-year comparison.

The teachers' average salary in 1932 was $1,516. Today it is $4,000.

At first glance it would appear that the teachers have helped themselves generously to the public treasury and certainly the dollar comparison would indicate that they have bettered

But hasty conclusions are dangerous.

A memory of the depression and of 1932 serves to remind us all that wages were at subnormal levels and the report's listed $1,516 wage was low even for that time. And what the report does not show is that the dollar in 1932 purchased more than twice what it does today. If that compensating factor is applied, then today's $4,000 annual average wage says only that the teaching profession has about been able to hold its own.

The pinch seems to be in assessed valuations. While the dollar is less than half what it was in 1932, the Lincoln school district's assessed valuation is $143,252,893 today compared to $121,-000,000 twenty-two years ago.

One could not prudently say that economic health would be unimpaired if valuations had been fully adjusted to the dollar's declining worth. If they had, then Lincoln's assessed valuation would be in excess of $250 million. But the picture does outline the problem of confining the educational budget mainly to one kind of tax. And it indicates a potentially fertile field in which to explore for an ultimate remedy for not only Lincoln's but the state's growing educational problem.

Failure to win security clearance continues the barrier between him and government scientific information and therefore reduces his usefulness to a point where he sees no further point in taking a company's pay which he cannot serve fully.

Dr. Condon is not the first American scientist to retreat from his fullest capacities under a security clearance principle which in case of question would rather be safe than sorry—a position that does not quite live up to the requirements of the situation nor to the long established American sense of good judgment. Proven security risks have no business with vital secrets. But in doubtful or unclear cases as that of Dr. Condon there is a clear responsibility on the part of the challenging public agency to follow through to a convincing conclusion. Inaction almost inevitably leads to results equivalent to the verdict of guilty.

The Way One Says It

One might question the enthusiasm of Commerce Secretary Weeks who reported a 79,000 increase in November unemployment as "a further improvement in the job situation."

At latest reports there are 283,000 jobless in the United States, and adding 79,000 to that number hardly qualifies as an improvement unless retirement of every citizen from work is a great national objective. As it is generally figured the millions without jobs are just that many people who are facing serious worry while their inactivity places a burden on those who are still on the job and committed to a brother's keeper principle.

But Secretary Weeks did have a point on his side. Early winter is a time of seasonal unemployment and an increase in the figures at this time does not indicate a seriously slipping economy. It just means that things haven't speeded up as well as could be wished

Ike Plans Reprisals If Reds Hold Airmen

WASHINGTON - President Eisenhower has made one important concession to military advisers who have been pushing him to take strong steps in China, These military men are chiefly Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. James Van Fleet, the Korea commander whose letter on troop-training contributed to Ike's

What the President has agreed to is the use of the U.S. Navy to seize Red Chinese merchant vessels - if the United Nations fails in its attempt to free the 11 American airmen and two American Eisenhower's concession on this point came only after a long series of debates inside the National Security Council and the White House. During most of these debates the President leaned over backward against his military ad-

The man who chiefly backed him up was Gen. Matt Ridgeway. Army chief of staff, who has so emphatically disagreed with Eisenhower on reducing the strength of the armed forces that he will probably be retired on his birthday in March. But, on the question of getting bogged down in a possible war in China, the two spoke the same language.

Admiral Radford, however, is one of the most charming and persuasive military-men in the Pentagon. Very much in the doghouse with the Truman administration because of his open battle against the Air Force, Radford sweettalked himself into Ike's good graces during one short hour when Ike's plane refueled at Iwo Jima during the December, 1952 trip to Ike then took Radford on the rest of the trip and he's been with him ever since.

☆ ☆ ☆ EASY TO SEIZE REDS

Radford, therefore, was able to talk Eisenhower into a promise that the U.S. Navy would be used to seize Communist China shipping -if the UN negotiations break down. He did this in part by showing how easy it has been for Chiang Kai-shek's navy, reinforced by U.S. Observation planes and using former U.S. warships, to capture Red Chinese shipping in the Formosa straits.

Red shipping has to pass through the relatively narrow waters between the Chinese mainland and Chiang's Formosa, where it is easy for Chiang to lay in wait and pick off ships almost at will. Thus, without a blockade, Red

Ching would not be able to communicate between the vitally important seaports of the south and those of the north, about the same thing as cutting New York-Philadelphia-Boston off from Baltimore-Norfolk-Miami-New Orleans.

Note- Ike was of the opinion that the U.N. mission would succeed and that a showdown with Red China navy would not be ne-

WASHINGTON PIPELINE

The State Department has drawn up a secret list of 526 missing Americans - 472 servicemen, 54 civilians - who have disappeared behind the bamboo curtain. The State Department is morally certain many are alive in Communist prisons, has asked central Intelligence to locate them . . . If our agents in China can find proof these men are alive, Uncle Sam will make a vigorous protest in the United Nations, then follow up with military pressure if necessary . . . The French are missing 20,000 troops that the Reds were supposed to repatriate under the armistice agreement in Indo-China ... The recent East German elections revealed that the number of voters has dropped by 238,181 in the last four years. Most are refusees who fled to the West . . . The administration is quietly trying to arrange for Chief. Justice Earl Warren to address a joint session of Congress. The federal courts are in such urgent need of increased appropriations that a personal appeal form the Chief Justice is considered necessary to dramatize the need . . . For example, the chief justice - second most important official in the land - doesn't even have a limosine. He must either rent one or hail a cab to attend formal functions. Yet minor assistant secretaries, attending the same functions, drive up in official government limousines . . . Ike and Mamie have four plush presidential limousines between them, and another three for hauling important visitors - a total of seven. Maybe they could loan one to the chief justice. 쇼 쇼 쇼 MR. NIX VS. MR. NO

The inside story hasn't been told, but Bill Knowland's break with the administration isn't a personal spilt with President Eisenhower. It's resentment against Vice President Nixon.

Those who know Knowland know he's so bitter against his fellow Californian that he will automatically oppose anything Nixon favors. Since the vice president is the "voice-of-Ike" on Capitol Hill, this has the psychological effect of putting Knowland at odds with the administration on almost every

Also at the back of Knowland's mind, his friends say, is an ambition to suceed the late Sen. Robert Taft as spokesman for the GOP conservative wing. If Ike declines to run again, Knowland is convinced the Republican party will give its next presidential nomination to the most promising conservative candidate. This explains why Knowland declined comment recently as to whether Ike should be drafted.

Or, if Ike does try for a second term, he may be forced to choose conservative running mate for the sake of party harmony. In either case, Knowland would like to be the most available choice.

Vice President Nixon, as the tail to the Eisenhower kite, is obliged to go in the same direction as the President. Nixon does his best to determine the direction and guide the President. Frequently he has. It was he who for months laid down the appease-Joe policy. But once the policy is laid down, Nixon faithfully follows the Eisenhower line. And once the White House lined up positively against McCarthy, no one worked harder behind the scenes against McCarthy than Nixon.

Knowland's friends swear this is the main reason the big, obstinate majority leader voted for Mc-Carthy. It was Nixon, for example. who appointed the censure committee, including its Senate chairman, Utah Sen. Arthur Watkins. Afterward, it was Nixon who persuaded Ike to congratulate Wat-

Ike Strengthens His Hold On His Party

WASHINGTON - Third party talk which has plagued the slumbers of Republicans ever since Sen. McCarthy's compulsive attack on President Eisenhower has given way to "draft Esienhower" conversation. Thus the lines are being drawn for another Eisenhower-Stevenson race in 1956. Few professionals drubt that it will take place. Despite the lessons of the fall election, half the Republicans in the Senate voted against the censure of McCarthy.But when the legislative leaders gathered with the President Monday to discuss the program he will present to the next Congress, one of them said they acted like "cooing doves."

Notably in the presidential dovecote was Sen. Knowland whose recent actions, as much as those of Sen. McCarthy, contributed to third party talk. Knowland, whose reelection as GOP Senate leader is certain, has also been talking in a much more conciliatory way.

 *  The threat of a third party splitting the Republicans was of course implicit in the bitter attack by Mc-Carthy on the President. Led by McCarthy it could only be annoying. What gave it some substance is that the sincere and respectable Knowland was sor strongly assailing the administration's China policy and had voted for McCarthy. His present milder attitude has dashed the hopes of the McCarthy following that he can be induced to be their leader. Knowland will probably continue to differ with the administration so strongly as to cause doubt and unhappiness at times. As an experienced politician, however, he knows that the road of a splinter party leads only to political isolation and frustration and he has chosen not to take it.

Perhaps his friends among the elder senators have warned him of what former Sen. Burton Wheeler once said and later proved in his own case. It is that no senator ever becomes important politically by opposing a President of his own 소 소 소 Actually the hard McCarthy core has done little talking about a third party. Its aim is to capture the GOP. It will remain in the party at least until after the 1956 convention, seeking delegates who will express its views.

Since no amount of thought and planning will control McCarthy, he quite possibly caught his own followers by surprise in his attack on the President. It is believed here that they are looking to his wife tr calm him down and prevent similar outbursts in the future.

It is known here that President Eisenhower groans more about the incessant demands of the presidency than any of his recent predecessors. Nor does he get the pleasure out of wielding presidential power, possibly because he often seems not to know how to use it, that others have enjoyed.

But he has shown that he is responsive to the call of duty when it is strongly put by his party, even against his own inclinations. History has taught the capital to be cynical about the desire of powerful men to step down from their exalted places, but even if it had not, it would expect the Republicans to draft their popular President and that President to yield. MAN'S BEST FRIEND

Their First Christmas Together

Star Staff Writer There is nothing sadder than a four-year-old girl whose cocker puppy has just died. It is awfully difficult to see why a puppy has to die when he was such a good puppy. Kay George of 3316 So. 28th was brokenhearted when her sixmonth-old Buffer died of distem-

The decision to accept a new dog in the family was carefully pondered over by Kay, when her daddy came home one day telling 'her of a cocker puppy she could have for the asking. "Arf," was kept at the warehouse where Daddy worked while Kay was deciding whether she should have another dog. The employees at the warehouse called the small cocker "Arf" because she had no name and made herself heard. The cocker had been given to an employee along with another dog from the same litter. He in turn volunteered to give Edwin George one of the pups. You would never know that

Cindy was not the first dog to live in the George household. Kay feeds her regularly except when the nineyear-old plays lazy and sleeps late on Saturday. The two are fast friends. Cindy will follow her mistress everywhere around the neighborhood. But Kay will carefully steer her beloved dog away from "certain places" where Cindy gets into trouble with other dogs.

Cindy always jumps in the car that takes Kay to and from school. She has been pulled back from the car window more than once just

Strange to say, Cindy has nothing to do with the Christmas tree that just popped up in the living room one day. She is good about keeping away from the bright bulbs

Wheat Outlook

Lincoln, Neb. To the editor of The Lincoln

Star: The crop year of 1954 will soon close with all the statistics of production and consumption added up so the farmers can take a look at past performances and glance at the future. The Argentine report furnishes some interesting data about crop conditions for 1954.

The carry-over of wheat on Dec. 1, 1953, was 1.8 million bushels of wheat and the Argentine Wheat Board contracted through a New -York exporting firm to trade corn for 7.9 million bushels of wheat, price of both wheat and corn not stated. To guard against any future shortage, the Argentine Wheat Board has purchased 14.7 million bushels of wheat to be stored against over-selling or a serious crop failure.

On Sept. 1, 1954, Argentine reported the sale of 18,372,000 bushels of wheat to Italy at $1.71 per bushel f.o.b. On Sept. 30, 1954, it also reported a sale of 3,674,000 bushels of wheat to Western Germany at $1.71 a bushel.

The Ministry of Agriculture of France report on Sept. 1, 1954, placed the wheat crop of France at 3695 million bushels with the farmers setting a new record of 33 bushels per acre. The wheat growers of France have a guaranteed price of $2.56 per bushel.

On Sept. 21 the Wheat Producers' Association held a meeting to consider "what measures should be put into effect to cope with the increasing surpluses." The Australian Wheat Board has approved a loan by the Commonwealth Bank of 3.5 million pounds to provide an additional elevator capacity of 50 million bushels.

A U.S. senator from Kansas stated on a radio program in Washington that the trouble with the wheat growers was caused by export troubles. He stated that if we could export the production of 10 million acres of wheat, the wheat situation would be adjusted to supply and demand.

Experiment Station For Northeast Favored Preceded Erickson's Slaying

Farm Short Course Also Recommended

Farm folks in northeastern Nebraska are interested in the establishment of an Experiment Station in that area and also in the reactivation of the farm short course program at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

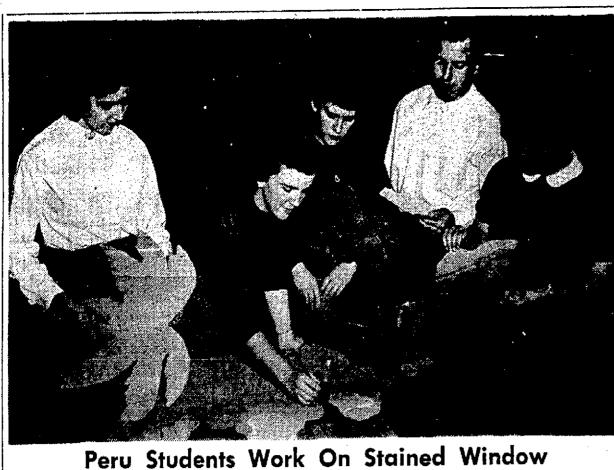

That was what Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin found on his visit to that area. Farm folks in the Tekamah, Wayne, Dakota City, Allen and Hartington communities expressed their interest in both projects. Finances for the Experiment Station and Short Course programs are included in the current biennial budget proposal of the University.

A committee of farm and town folks from northeastern Nebraska has been working on the establishment of the Experiment Station for some time. The group met last summer with Dean W. V. Lambert, Chancellor Hardin and others and outlined the need of research work in that area.

The farm short course program at the College of Agriculture was dropped during the war and Chancellor Hardin and Dean Lambert hope to get it started again. Farm folks told the chancellor on the trip of the need of such training for farm youths. They pointed out that the old farm operator's was highly successful.

Britons Are Getting 'Do It Yourself' Habit

do it yourself" vogue is trans-forming the traditional British way of diffe today and is opening up big new fields for scores of British industries.

Not only the British working man but the middle and professional classes and even the nation's poor aristocrats are becoming part-time handymen.

Recent surveys disclosed that over 80 per cent of the British now do at least some of the interior decorating in their own homes while over two-thirds make a stab at outside decoration:

Paint manufacturers have been quick to respond to and encourage this trend. They are now catering to the home decorator, putting up paint in handy-sized tins. changing distribution methods so that retailers can provide the widest variety of types and colors of paint, issuing free pamphlets on painting techniques to the public, and setting up advice bureaus for home decorators.

Across the Counter

The surveys also reveal that nearly 70 per cent of wallpapers are now sold across the retail shop counter. British firms are turning out a regular flow of ready; to - build furniture kits, roof repair outfits, home canning machines, new and improved machines for home knitters and weavers. The public is snapping them up.

Scores of gadgets, devices and home-aids are produced for paintstripping, for removing rust or for rust-proofing, and even for washing and polishing the family car with a single mop.

The younger generation, the handymen of the future, are advised by manufacturers and magazine editors that there is a "big thrill" in making your own toys. Sales of toy-assembly kits of all kinds are booming.

remember some of these boys and girls from last year," marked Santa Clus, opening the letters that Assistant Postmaster Ralph Whyman has been holding for him at the Lincoln Post Office. As the Post Office has no delivery facilities to the North Pole, Santa's letters are held until he drops by for them.

"Some of these letters have quite long lists," said Santa, glancing over some of the letters. "But my helpers and I will be able to find our what each want most. That way we will have enough toys for all boys and girls."

Two kindergarten, youngsters had drawn pictures of what they want ed for Christmas.

The postmaster confessed to Santa he couldn't guess what they represented. "It takes imagination," replied Santa. "I think I know, but just the same I'll show these two letters to Mrs. Claus. She'll know for sure."

"It seems we picked out just the right toys last year for this little boy," said Santa, as he read another letter.

WHEN we were more or less forced out of business yesterday we were about to add to pur holiday travelers-Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Volz, for instance, and their son, Bob-who plan to leave the day after Christmas to spend New Year's at the Broadmoor in Colorado Springs.

AND we had also wanted to tell you of some news from a San Francisco Bassinet Club-inyolving the arrival of Miss Corinne Elizabeth Cannell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cannell-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cannell of San Francisco—and great-granddaughter of Mrs. W. D. Cannell of Lincoln.

THAT Christmas festivity at Brownell Hall-which includes a dance for the young set-and a party for the parents who are invited to Omaha for the preholiday affair-will have quite a representation from Lincoln as far as the parents are concerned- We've already told you that Mr. and Mrs. Richard Joy will be there-but we didn't know then that Mr. and Mrs. Neil Hall, Mrs. Florence Bates - whose granddaughter, Strelsa Sears, is attending Brownell-Mrs. Fred Sidles and her mother, Mrs. George A. Wells of Ft. Collins, Colo., also they are. The party, by the way, is this evening.

WELL-there are many more names on the guest book since yesterday- Just heard that Dr. and Mrs. William Angle and their small daughter, Marcia, will be coming from Omaha to spend the Christmas week-end with Dr. Angle's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Everett Angle- Dr. and Mrs. Angle also will have as their house guests for the Christmas season their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Angle of Stillwater, Okla.

We hear that Mr. and Mrs. John Angle will be host and hostess to the family at dinner on Christmas Day when the group will be joined by Mrs. John Angle's father, Dr. James

When you're a young thing it's not hard to have the holiday spirit several days ahead of Christmas — and when you multiply that holiday spirit 15 times you really have a festive pre-Christmas party.

The Star Welcomes

Today, we have polished our welcome mat until it shines, and our red carpet has been given a thorough dusting and rolled out to welcome several more Lincoln newcomers.

Just a hop, skip, and a jump from their hometown is the Boyd Cook family. They recently moved to Lincoln from Auburn, and Mr. Cook now is working at a local auto shop as a mechanic. Moving into their new home was not very difficult for Mrs. Cook who had the able assistance of her three children, Darlene, Carol Jean, and Donald. Now that life has almost returned to normalcy, Mrs Cook is quite busy making good things to eat for Christmas holidays. We understand that her family always is eager to try out Mrs. Cook's new and tempting recipes.

The new address of Capt. and Mrs. George Haves and their children, Pamela, Peter and Mike is 2944 No. 44th. Although the Hayes always have claimed Bos-

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Madison and their three children are in the midst of redecorating their home at 1400 No. 44th. Both Mr. and Mrs. Madison are do-it-yourself fans. The Madisons recently, have moved to Lincoln from Minneapolis, Minn., so they are prepared for a good old-fashioned snows Christmas Mr. Madison is a visual specialist at the University of Nebraska. A typical day in Mrs. Madison's life is rather hectic. First she must get her children, Paul and Curtis off to school on time. Then there is the daily housework that takes much time. Of course, she saves much of the day to play with her youngest son, Roger, and manages to have a little spare time, to experiment with new and exotic recipes.

From York, Nebraska, comes the Gerald W. Watson family. Mr. Watson is a compositor for the Lincoln newspapers. While her husband is busy at the papers, Mrs. Watson is busy with her new home at 4115 So. 10th and her little boy, Paul, who is just seven months old, a little young to understand Christmas, but we'll wager Santa won't forget him.

Granted the full pardon, which in effect wipes the crime from the books legally, was Verne Lechliter, 41, of Cheyenne, Wyo., a newspaper reporter who won a $500 award for helping solve a murder

Lechliter served a sentence nearly 25 years ago for rape in Nemaha County. He was a senior in high school at the time.

After his release he worked his way through the University of Nebraska and was described by former Sen. John McKnight as "an outstanding newspaper reporter."

In one of the three life sentence commutations, the family of 71year-old Edgar J. Stewart, who only during the last year learned that he had been confined in the penitentiary since 1939 serving a life sentence for first degree murder, came from Kansas to plead for his release.

Russian Policy Switch Hinted

-U.S. Forces Withdrawal als Demanded

WASHINGTON (INS)-State Department experts believe that Russia's official endorsement of Red China's demand that U.S. forces withdraw from Formosa may foreshadow a new switch in Soviet Department officials expressed no great surprise at the development although they noted that it marked the first time the Soviet government has officially taken part in the controversy over the Nationalist Chinese stronghold of Formosa.

One authority commented that the new Russian move was "just part of the diplomatic offensive by the Soviet and was no departure from her previous position.i

However, he added that the declaration by the Soviet Ministry broadcast by Radio Moscow could presage abandonment of recent Kremlin "soft talk" propaganda which has emphasized the need for lessening international tensions.

The department expert continued that the Russians may be under pressure from the Chinese Reds to support their propaganda campaign and added: "We have always known the Russians backed Communist Chinese aims in For-

'Divided Europe Fight Communism

"A Western Europe divided into 18 countries cannot resist Communism effectively," a native of Poland who is director of political activities for the European Youth Campaign said here.

-Georges Rencki, active in the Free Polish Resistance movement during World War II, spoke at a meeting of the Nebraska University Council of World Affairs.

A divided Western Europe is unable to resist Communism effectively, he said, not only for military reasons but also because economic and social problems premarket.

"I was amazed to see American international affairs," he said. but they do not know enough about European unity."

The average man on the street in Europe, Rencki said, knows America by just two men, President Eisenhower and Sen. Joe Mc-Carthy.

Europeans overwhelmingly are opposed to McCarthy, he said, not because of his anti-Communist measures, but because of the way he applies them.
